

JURY IS SELECTED FOR THE PING CASE

Former Jackson County Woman on Trial for Her Life at Bedford for Killing Her Husband.

TO PLEAD EMOTIONAL INSANITY Prosecution Questioned Each Jurymen as to His Scruples Regarding Capital Punishment.

The selection of the jury before whom Mrs. Maude Ping, of Bedford, will be tried for the murder of her husband, James Ping, was completed in the Lawrence circuit court Monday afternoon. The tragedy occurred just eight months ago Monday night while the husband and father was sitting at the supper table. Mrs. Ping was talking to her husband but went into an adjoining room and returned with the revolver with which she shot him. The pistol was fired within a foot of his forehead and he died almost instantly. After the fatal shot was fired Mrs. Ping turned the weapon upon herself and for several days her life hung in a balance. She has practically recovered from the wound.

Both the murdered man and his wife were former residents of this county. Mrs. Ping at one time lived near Brownstown and later moved to Norman Station. Her husband was also a resident of this county several years ago. The woman is nineteen years of age and has been in jail since the tragedy.

A special venire was summoned for the trial and the entire morning and part of the afternoon Monday was spent in selecting the jury. It was noticeable that the prosecution made inquiry of each jurymen as to his scruples regarding capital punishment, which is taken to mean that an effort will be made to prove that the woman is guilty of murder in the first degree. The defense, it is understood, will try to show that the woman was insane at the time the act was committed and that her insanity was due to jealousy. It is said that Mr. Ping had a picture of a woman together with some letters which will be introduced as evidence to show that Mrs. Ping had good reason for jealousy. It has also been rumored that the names of some Jackson county women will be mentioned in the trial. The trial is one of the most sensational held in the Lawrence circuit court for some time and because the parties formerly lived in this county considerable interest has been shown in the proceedings here.

Revival Continues.

The revival services at the Christian church will continue this week. The interest grows each evening. The Rev. E. L. Pettus delivered a strong sermon last night on the subject, "Faith," giving illustrations to make some parts plainer. Services each evening at 7:30.

FIRE IN B. & O. YARDS

Department Called to Extinguish Burning Car of Broom Corn.

A car of broom corn in the B. & O. S-W. yards caught fire shortly after six o'clock this morning and the city fire department assisted by railroad men fought the flames for more than three hours before they were entirely extinguished. The car was filled and the corn was packed in closely which made the fire a stubborn one.

The broom corn was shipped in bales and it was necessary to take them from the car before the flames were entirely out. The car was damaged to some extent, but the greatest loss is the corn which is selling for high prices. It is supposed that the fire started from spontaneous combustion, as the box car was tightly closed and it is hardly probable that it was started from a spark from an engine. The seal was not broken which would indicate that the car had not been opened by tramps.

THANKSGIVING BASKETS

Will Not be Distributed This Year by City Charity Organization.

The charity association held a meeting at the library Monday afternoon and the work for the coming year was outlined. The results from Charity week were not as large as anticipated, although sufficient money was contributed to greatly assist the work. While there is a sum of money on hand, it is not sufficiently large to justify a general distribution of Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets, and it was decided to give more attention to the Christmas baskets than to the Thanksgiving distribution. This plan was decided upon as the fall had been open and the weather had not caused many hardships. No baskets will be distributed Thanksgiving, but during Christmas week the custom will be observed.

SPECIAL MEETING

Board of Public Safety May Discuss Police Matters Tonight.

The board of public safety will hold a special meeting tonight and several important questions may be discussed. Several reports have been referred to this body and these will be taken up and considered. It is also reported that the resignation of one of the policemen will be presented, and according to rumors, if his resignation is not filed, he will be asked to file one. Nothing definite has been given out by any of the members, but it is known that "something is brewing" in police circles. The report of Sanitary Inspector Wolfe will likely be discussed and some action taken regarding the building which he has reported to be in an unsafe condition.

Civic League.

The question has been frequently asked, "Is the Civic League dead, and what has become of it?" This question was answered decidedly in the negative by a small but enthusiastic number of the members who held an informal meeting at the library last night. The money on hand was ordered placed on deposit. It was the consensus of opinion that the present quorum required had retarded progress. There was also discussion entirely favorable in regard to inviting the men of Seymour to co-operate in this work. As these two points would effect the constitution, it was decided to call a full attendance of the members the second Monday in February. Civic League Press Committee.

DECISION IS GIVEN ON NEW M.W.A. RATES

Head Camp is Enjoined From Putting Them into Effect by an Illinois Circuit Judge.

MAY APPEAL TO HIGHER COURT

Members of the Seymour Camp Will Continue the New Rate Until Question is Finally Settled.

Members of the local camp of the Modern Woodmen of America are much interested in the recent opinion handed down by Judge Robert Shirley of the Sangamon circuit court at Springfield, Ill., in which he held that the new increased rates of the order are illegal. The rate question has been up before the members of that order for some time and has been one of the most important questions considered by the lodge within the past few months.

By the decision given by Judge Shirley, a permanent injunction was granted enjoining the head camp from putting the rate into effect, and also restraining the officers from declaring any member delinquent who refused to pay the revised rate. The injunction is effective everywhere because Illinois is the home of the organization.

The members of the order in this city declare that they do not know what effect the decision will have, but are of the opinion that it will be carried to a higher court and pending the appeal the new rates will be collected as usual. Many of them say that they are satisfied with the new rate and desire to see it upheld by the higher court. They further claim that in their opinion an increased rate is necessary in order that the insurance department can be continued successfully.

The rate question was up some time ago and it was decided to appoint a committee to frame a new scale. Charles F. Remy, of Indianapolis, was a member of this committee and was in Seymour a few months ago to explain the new schedule to the local members. Under the plan there are quite a number of options open to the insurance members and several changes have been made in the policies.

An officer of the lodge said that no change would probably be made here until the supreme court had given a decision, and in his opinion the decision of the lower court would be overruled and the new rates sustained.

FINAL STATEMENT

Of Short Course Association Will Be Made Last of This Week.

The final financial statement of the short course association will not be completed before the latter part of the week. The officers held a meeting Monday afternoon, but it was found that many of the bills were not filed and probably would not be in before Friday or Saturday. Quite a number of persons who sold tickets have delayed their reports and this has caused some delay.

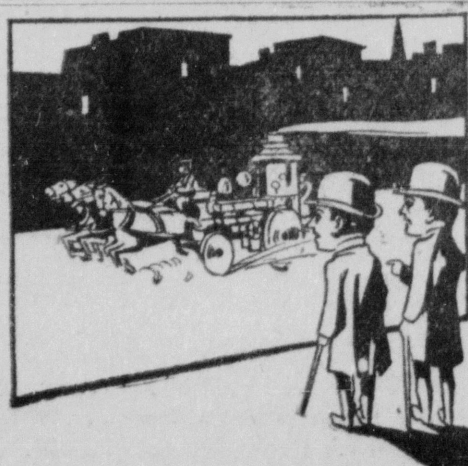

The officers, however, have a sufficient number of the bills in to give them an idea of what the total expense will be and they are of the opinion that the receipts will be large enough to pay all the claims. It is said the expenses will not be as large as first believed.

EXHIBITION CAR

Showing Products of the Southwest Visits This City.

An exhibition car carrying the products of the Southwest was in Seymour a few hours this morning and was visited by quite a number of local people. The car is sent out by the "Cotton Belt Route" and the products are arranged by the agricultural commission. It was in charge of James U. Horne, secretary to the Agricultural and Industrial agent, and L. W. Saupe, assistant industrial and immigration commissioner.

The exhibitions were of interest because many products were seen which do not grow in this climate. Especial emphasis was placed on cotton, rice and peanuts, which are said to be profitable crops in that territory. Several varieties of each were shown in the car. Samples of fruits were also on exhibit. The men in charge of the car said that an effort was made to select the average quality, and the exhibits did not represent what could be done and were not the kind that would be used in fruit or grain shows.

GAME IS SCARCE

Game Warden Says Many Quail Starved This Winter.

Local hunters who have found a scarcity of game this season will be interested in the report of J. J. Bravery, deputy game warden, who reports that the same condition exists over the state.

"The scarcity of the birds is due to the extreme cold weather of last winter," said Mr. Bravery. "The quail froze and starved by the thousands and consequently the stock of birds was greatly reduced and a parent stock was not on hand last summer to cause the feathered population to multiply.

"Quails as a rule are hardly providing they can get feed. With sufficient food they will be able to withstand the greatest cold. Many farmers are feeding the birds during the winter months and it is a great help to them. If every farmer would do that the number would soon greatly increase. The cold weather kills more quail each year than the hunters and as the birds are a great help to the farmers by the destruction of insects the feeding in winter should be more broadcast.

"I believe that there is more quail in Jay county than any other county in eastern Indiana. The farmers there almost to a man provide food for the birds during the winter months and consequently they have survived the hard climates and are rapidly multiplying.

"The rabbit supply is now also because of last season's cold weather. The heavy rains in the spring also drowned thousands of the young rabbits."

UNION SERVICE

Will be Held at First Baptist Church Thanksgiving Night.

The annual union Thanksgiving service will be held Thursday night at the First Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock. The Thanksgiving sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Edward L. Pettus, pastor of the Christian church. The service has been conducted in the evening for several years and it has been found that the attendance was larger than when the meeting was held at the morning hour. Special music has been arranged for the service Thursday night.

WHAT YOU LOOK FOR

In a shoe.

You should look, first of all, for a shoe that will meet your economical needs.

Then of course, should look for a neat appearing shoe, not overlooking comfort.

Then again, first cost must be right with assurance of a little repairs as possible.

Finally you should look for a shoe backed by a sturdy organization with ample capital, and a reputation of sufficient standing to insure your getting your demands.

It now looks like you are looking for Rice & Hutchins shoes. They meet all these demands.

ALLEGED LEADERS OF BIG RIOT FREED

Ettor, Giovannitti and Caruso Are Found "Not Guilty" After Long Trial at Salem, Mass.

CASE OF WORLD WIDE INTEREST

Defendants Were Alleged to Have Incited the Riots at Lawrence in Which a Woman Was Killed.

Salem, Mass., November 26.—"Not guilty" was the verdict of the jury in the case of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso, charged with responsibility for the death of Anna Lopizzo, who was killed in a Lawrence textile strike riot last winter.

The court told Caruso that there was another indictment against him, charging him with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill and that the court would release him on his own recognizance. When the prisoner had taken oath to appear in court when summoned, he was released from the cage. His wife, waiting at the rail behind the prisoners cage, fell into his arms and a dozen of his male companions rushed forward and kissed him.

Ettor and Giovannitti also were held on another indictment charging them, with William D. Haywood, of the Industrial Workers of the World, and others, with conspiracy to incite riot in the Lawrence strike. On this they were released on bonds of $500 each, which were furnished by Helen S. Dudley, of Boston.

The case has attracted world wide attention. The prosecution contended that the three men by speeches and writings incited the big riot at the textile mills at Lawrence and that during the trouble Anna Lopizzo was killed. The strike began January 12 when the workers were notified that their wages had been reduced. A number of riots occurred about the mill gates. Efforts were made to settle the strikes but without avail. On January 29 Ettor and Giovannitti addressed the strikers after an immense street parade, and it was by these speeches, it is alleged, the riots were incited.

SENTENCED TO DIE

New York Gunmen Will be Executed January 6.

New York, November 26.—Gyp the Blood, Whitey Lewis, Lefty Louie and Dago Frank, the gunmen convicted of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, were sentenced by Justice Goff today to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing during the week of January 6.

They will meet the same fate as Lieutenant Charles Becker, convicted of instigating the murder of the gambler. He is now in Sing Sing awaiting death, but an appeal has been taken in his case.

What Other People Do

Woman in Brown—Oh, how do you do? I've been so anxious to see you ever since I first heard about your friends the Drapers.

Woman in Gray—Please do not call them my friends. I think so much of that word that I hate to hear it used in such a connection. Wasn't it dread ful? You know, they say that he spec ulated terribly! And I really believe she knew all about it all the time. Would you believe it? She is such a smiling creature! Here's Mrs. Prentice.

Mrs. Prentice—How do you both do? My only reason for coming to teas like this is to get a chance to see my friends. Nobody ever calls any more. Or, at least, nobody ever comes to my house. I'll wager a cooky that you were talking about the Burrs. Do you know, I'm not surprised a bit. I've said so right along. Why, Mr. Burr used to sit on the porch without a col lar on! He did! You can ask any body. And the tales they tell! Dear me, I wouldn't repeat them for mil lions of dollars, even to dear friends like you. Her hats!

Woman in Brown—I never knew her, but when I moved into this neighbor hood first I was told about the woman who wore the queer hats.

Woman in Blue—Oh, yes, indeed. Why, she never seems to consult the fashions at all. Just wears what she thinks is becoming, that's all, and it's always the same sort of hat every sea son. I don't wonder that her husband got tired of her.

Woman in Gray—They say that when the Drapers moved away you could have taken a wagonload of rub bish out of their basement alone. They didn't pretend to clean things up. The janitor told me he never had so much work. He wouldn't come up and do anything for me until I offered him double the usual amount because he was so tired carting out the trash.

Woman in Brown—They threw away such good things, too. My little boy found lots of things to play with there—an almost good egg beater, a flower pot and a lot of other things. They were both of them so extravagant!

Mrs. Prentice—Oh, dreadfully. But even they did not hold a candle to that young widow on our street, Mrs. Duval.

Woman in Blue—Is she a widow? I was wondering.

Mrs. Prentice—She said so. That's all I know about it.

Woman in Gray—You can't tell by what people say about themselves. Isn't she just back from the west? Reno or somewhere?

Mrs. Prentice—She has a niece out west whom she was visiting, so she says.

Woman in Brown—It must be con venient to have relatives all over the country that way.

Woman in Blue—Aren't you dread ful? That makes me think. I saw Miss Lane downtown Monday. She al ways goes down bargain days, you know. She was in the tea room. I couldn't see that she had anything but toast and tea, so I wondered whether she had lost her position again. She said that she had a headache.

Woman in Brown—No, she resigned this time. She's going to be married.

Mrs. Prentice—How romantic!

Woman in Brown—No, it isn't a bit romantic. It's a man she has known for years and they're just making up an old quarrel. I suppose she thinks he's better than nothing now. Do try one of these little cakes. They are positively the worst tasting things I ever knew.

Woman in Blue—They never have anything very good to eat here. It isn't worth coming far for. You'll notice that every body here has come from just around the neighborhood.

Woman in Gray—She calls it a neigh borhood party, I believe. Is that Miss Vance over there? How thin she is! Why hasn't somebody taught her to hold her shoulders back so that she won't look so dreadfully awkward?

Mrs. Prentice—That makes me think of your aunt.

Woman in Gray—My aunt is not awkward. I assure you she is quite graceful.

Mrs. Prentice—Oh, my dear, you misunderstand me. I meant the shawl that woman over there is wearing—white crepe, isn't it? What is your aunt busy with now? She is always doing something interesting.

Woman in Gray—She has been work ing on our family tree and has only a few more branches to look up. She has been reading me some old letters written from small towns over a hun dred years ago.

Woman in Blue—They must be in teresting.

Woman in Gray—They are. But you have no idea how narrow people were then.

Woman in Blue—They were dread fully narrow. Yes, indeed. And so petty!

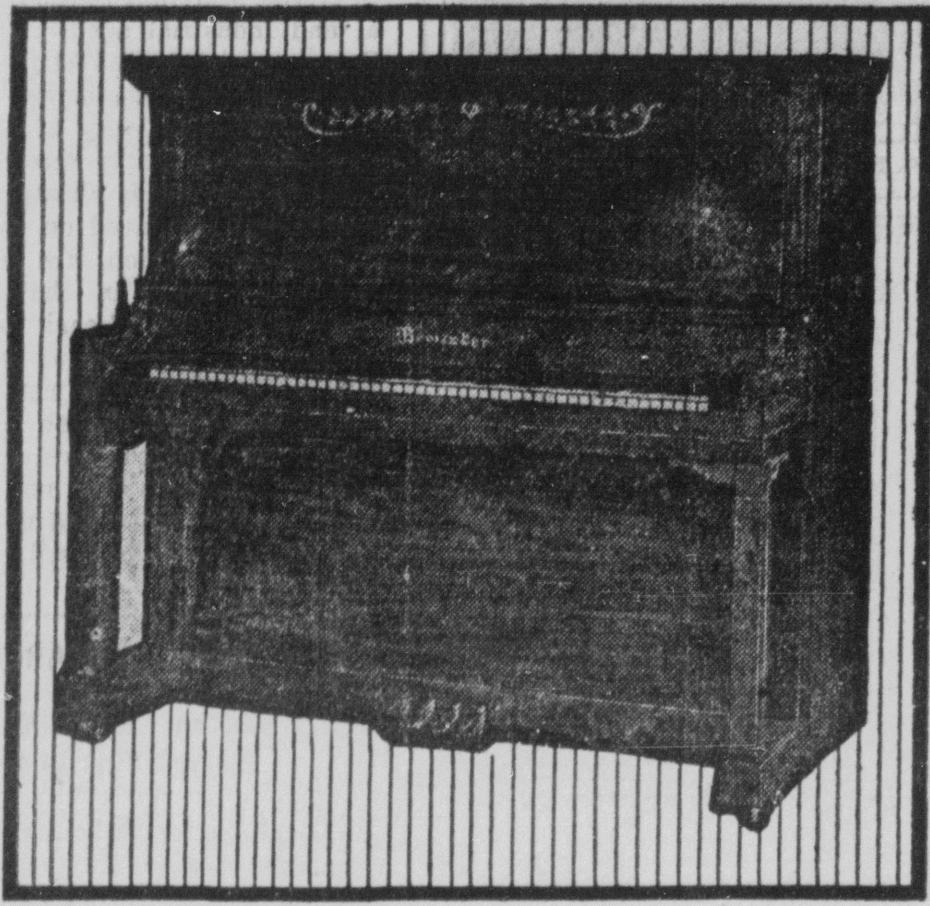

Woman in Gray—Oh, yes. And so critical! How they picked people to pieces and criticised them! Dreadful!

Woman in Brown—Oh, indeed, yes. Nothing was too severe for people to say behind other people's backs.

Mrs. Prentice—Oh, my dears, aren't you glad you didn't live in those days? It would have been most shocking to people of our generous dispositions."—Chicago Daily News.

It's difficult for the average man to understand why some women are jeal ous of their husbands.

HORRID DESIGN TOLD IN COURT

Dynamiters Planned to Destroy
Los Angeles.

McMANIGAL CONCLUDES STORY

As a Climax to His Sensational Testimony in Federal Court, Government's Chief Witness Tells Jury That John McNamara Approached Him With a Proposition Literally to Wipe California City Off the Map.

Indianapolis, Nov. 26.—One of the stories that Ortie E. McManigal told on the witness stand in continuing his testimony in the dynamiting cases was how desperate John J. McNamara had become within a week of his arrest by the Burns detectives and to what lengths he proposed to go in carrying out the great dynamiting campaign of 1911.

For some reason J. J. McNamara felt a strong resentment against the city of Los Angeles, and he rarely spoke of it without an oath, said McManigal. He could not get over the feeling that there ought to be a larger program of destruction for that city, said witness. McManigal was around headquarters in April, 1907, and on the seventh day of that month the plan was unfolded to him by J. J., which, witness said, was the setting of numerous fires in different parts of the city with machines made for that purpose and the coincident blowing up of the water works system, so that the fire department would be helpless in extinguishing the flames. The time was to be fixed so that the fire would be carried to all parts of the city by favoring winds and the place would be wiped out of existence.

Another plot of which McNamara spoke, but which did not reach any particular development of means in their talks, said the witness, was to organize for a holdup at the Indianapolis speedway in May following, when, he said, there would be not less than $150,000 from receipts in the offices of the Speedway company. The plan was to have the holdup men provided with autos and to make the attack at a certain hour when the crowd's attention would be centered on the races.

"We may have to kill two or three, but what the hell is the difference, if we get the $150,000," said McNamara, according to the dynamiter.

McManigal told of being taken to Detective Reed's house in Chicago, where in a conversation J. B. said: "Every man for himself." McManigal said that in a conversation later with W. J. Burns he (McManigal) told in substance what he knew about the dynamiting plots.

The dynamiter was then turned over to the defense and cross-examination by Senator Kern was begun. Asked by Senator Kern if Hockin terrorized him into going into this work, witness replied that he had. Witness gave a list of explosions that he had pulled off and the amounts he had received for them. They aggregated twenty and he got a total of $3,290.

SPOOK DOINGS

One of the Features of a Trial in Progress at Laporte.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 26.—Spiritualistic mediums will play a large part in the second trial of the noted Leeds will case, which is in progress in the Porter circuit court.

Mrs. Amelia Leeds, who died possessed of great wealth, her fortune being estimated at from a half to a million dollars, bequeathed the largest part of the estate to her daughter, Mrs. Cushman, a Michigan City society woman, almost disinheriting the son, Orley Leeds, who is the plaintiff in the action.

Mrs. Leeds was a spiritualist, and in seances with mediums she claimed to have been divinely ordered to give her fortune to her daughter. The first trial of the case, which continued nearly two months, resulted in the disagreement of the jury.

Three Killed on Track.

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 26.—Frank Conley, aged thirty-five; Joe Pessier, aged thirty-two, and Edward Ressler, aged thirty-two, unmarried, were instantly killed three miles east of McCool, by a Baltimore & Ohio flyer. There is a double track at McCool. The south track was occupied by an eastbound freight train and the men stepped to the north track, when the flyer, traveling at sixty miles an hour, crashed into them, hurling the three bodies 200 feet from the track.

Fast Train Split Switch.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 26.—Although four sleepers and two coaches left the track from a Monon train at Ellettsville, no one was seriously injured. All the passengers were badly shaken up, however. The train was traveling thirty-five miles an hour, when it split the switch.

A Boy and a Gun.

Bowling Green, Ind., Nov. 26.—While examining a pistol at his home, two miles southwest of here, Ben Stwalley, aged fourteen, son of Mrs. Barbore Stwalley, accidentally was shot in the breast. The bullet entered the boy's left breast about an inch below the heart.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Isidor Rayner, Democratic United States senator from Maryland, is dead at his home here of neuritis. He had been ill several months.

CITIZENS WATCH A GANG LOOT VILLAGE

Slot Machines Gathered Up and Carted Away.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 26.—Representing themselves to be deputy sheriffs from Hammond, two unidentified men committed one of the boldest robberies ever reported in the Calumet region at Schneider. With a large automobile van they went from saloon to saloon and to every business place having a slot machine, quickly flashed stars and took the machines and contents to the auto.

The coolness with which the men worked convinced business men they had a right to confiscate the property. Money machines, candy, gum, cigar and all kinds of slot machines found in a wide-open town were collected until the auto van was filled. Then the robbers drove out of town at full speed. It is believed they obtained more than $1,000. As some of the machines were gambling devices, the owners have no recourse, even if the men are captured.

HYDE'S ALIBI

Family Witnesses Refute One of the State's Contentions.

New York, Nov. 26.—Charles H. Hyde, his wife and his fourteen-year-old son, all swore that the ex-city chamberlain now on trial, could not have compelled Joseph G. Robin to promise that the Northern bank would lend the Carnegie Trust company $130,000 between 6:30 and 8 o'clock of the evening of Aug. 22, 1910. This was because, after a motor ride from his office in Wall street, he had arrived at his home at Roslyn, L. I., in time for 7 o'clock dinner. There will be other witnesses to this alibi, it is stated, if they are required, one of whom will be his mother.

Cholera Spreading North.

CONSPIRACY AND FELONY CHARGED

Distinguished Men Face Bar of Federal Court.

ECHO OF MINE PROMOTION DEAL

Among Those Charged With Using the Mails For the Purpose of Getting Money by Deception Are Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy and Dr. William J. Morton; Son of Man Who Gave to World Beneficent Ether.

New York, Nov. 26.—After a day's sifting a jury has been made up for the trial of Julian Hawthorne, son of Nathaniel Hawthorne, and himself a writer of wide popularity; Josiah Quincy, twice mayor of Boston and assistant secretary of state under President Cleveland; Dr. William J. Morton, son of the physician who discovered how valuable ether is as an anesthetic, and Albert Freeman, who hitherto has achieved notoriety as a promoter of mining companies. There are three indictments against each of the defendants for conspiracy and one for a felony. The felony is based on the charge that they used the mails to get money under false pretenses, and the conspiracy consists in the charge that they used the mails fraudulently.

When the four defendants were called before Judge Hough in the United States district court, John McKinnon, who was secretary and treasurer of the mining companies with which the defendants were identified and who was indicted with them, was not lined up with them. This led to the report that he would be a witness against his former associates, but on this subject the United States district attorney, Mr. Wise, maintained a satisfied silence. It was noticeable that Mr. Hawthorne and Dr. Morton, both white haired and mustached, sat together during the proceedings, while Freeman and ex-Mayor Quincy offered advice in the selection of jurors, had their heads together a good part of the time.

It is the promotion and operation of the Temagami Cobalt mines, limited; Elk Lake Cobalt mines, limited; the Hawthorne Silver and Iron mines, limited, and the Montreal-James mines, limited, that the defendants are accused of having used the mails for fraudulent purposes.

The defense asked to have the indictments dismissed on the ground that the letters which were written by Mr. Hawthorne to college professors, professional and business men, exploiting the stock were in themselves harmless pieces of literature and did not constitute a crime. Judge Hough instructed the talesmen what they would have to determine was whether the promises and predictions made by Hawthorne and his associates were for the purposes of getting money by deception.

PEACEFUL COMPROMISE

A Promise of Better Things For the Dominican Republic Heard.

Washington, Nov. 26.—A compromise program has been agreed upon in the Dominican republic for the preservation of peace, according to word received at the state department, and the early return to the United States of the American commissioners is predicted.

The present administration in the Dominican republic will resign. Congress met in extra session today to elect a successor to Eladio Victoria, who now heads the Dominican government. This successor will probably be Archbishop Noel, who has been agreed on for the office of provisional president.

It is believed at the state department that the compromise agreed upon will result in many reforms in administration which will make possible the restoration of tranquility in the republic. It is proposed to install the provisional president not later than Dec. 1. He will probably hold office until the national elections can be held.

Made Incendiary Statements.

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 26.—A threat to incite a Haymarket riot in this city, made while speaking to the employees of the La Tosca Knitting mills and the Mohawk Valley Cap factory, caused the arrest of W. E. Clark of Chicago, representative of the Industrial Workers of the World. He was ordered arrested after he had made a number of incendiary statements to the textile workers.

Louisiana, Mo., Nov. 26.—John T. Brush, president of the New York National League baseball team, died in his private car Oceanic here early this morning. He was on his way west for his health. He had suffered for many years from locomotor ataxia.

FATAL EXPLOSION IN A DRY STARCH HOUSE

Dust Lets Go and Many Are Killed at Waukegan.

Waukegan, Wis., Nov. 26.—In an explosion in the dry starch house of the Corn Products company at this place, ten laborers were killed, a like number injured and five are missing. Immediately following the explosion the building, which was a three-story structure, took fire and burned to the ground, and it is believed by the police that some of the missing were cremated in the ruins. The injured were hurried to hospitals. Three of them are in a critical condition.

There were fifty-five employees in the building at the time of the explosion. All of them were known by number instead of by name, and because of this fact identification of some of the victims has not been established.

Most of the employees were at work on the ground floor and to this fact they owe their lives. The explosion was of such force that it shook the town and broke windows in stores and dwellings half a mile away, hurled the workmen against the side of the building and to the floor.

The work of rescuing those still alive began at once and the injured were rushed to hospitals.

LEADER RETAINED

Woman's Suffrage Association Re-elects Dr. Shaw For President.

Philadelphia, Nov. 26.—The National Woman's Suffrage association elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing year:

President, Dr. Anna H. Shaw; first vice president, Jane Addams; second vice president, Mrs. Charlotte Whitney; corresponding secretary, Mary W. Bennett; recording secretary, Susan W. Fitzgerald; treasurer, Mrs. Stanley W. McCormick, wife of the Chicago capitalist of International Harvester fame.

Miss Addams polled 416 votes out of 420, and one of the four cast against her was for Mrs. Belmont.

MANY RUMORS REND EUROPE

Prospect of General War Is Disquieting.

CHANCELLORIES ARE SILENT

Little Information of a Definite Character Is Permitted to Issue From Behind the Doors of the Various Chancelleries of State Where Issues of World Import Are Overshadowing All Other Subjects of Discussion.

London, Nov. 26.—There is today throughout Europe, though in the chancelleries the diplomats talk hopefully of the eventual settlement of the Balkan difficulty without a general war, a general feeling of unrest that is not quieted by the refusal of the governments to give any hint to their peoples as to what is in the wind. It has been a day of rumors, of the telling of sinister stories and the prompt denial of the same.

Vienna hears that an Austrian consul has disappeared mysteriously. He was last heard of in a town captured by the Servians. Servia has refused to define her attitude until she is done with the Turk. She is said to be fortifying Belgrade. On the heels of this report there comes a story that Austria was about to present an ultimatum to Servia and would act independently of the other powers.

And while the troops are being mobilized throughout Europe and there is talk of war on all men's lips at the little village of Baghtche, near Biyuk-Chekmendye, the plenipotentiaries of Turkey and Bulgaria are discussing the preliminaries for the negotiations for an armistice.

They met on neutral ground. Beyond the general belief that the Bulgarians, exhausted by the war, are willing to modify their first demands rejected by Turkey, and the intimation that this was now going on, nothing about the conference was given out. An armistice of eight days is reported to have been arranged pending the outcome of these conferences, and during that time the two armies will hold the positions they now occupy along the Tchataldja lines.

The story of the disappearance of the Austrian consul at Prisrend, Herr Prochaska, comes from the Vienna correspondent of the Daily Mail. He says that the dispute between Austria and Servia has been very seriously aggravated by the rumors that the consul has been done away with. According to his dispatch Herr Edl, the Austrian emissary dispatched to get into communication with Herr Prochaska, arrived at Uskub on Saturday, expecting to go to Prisrend. According to Herr Edl the Servian authorities told him that as the railroad communication with Prisrend had been interrupted, he could not go on. Whereupon he said that whether the communication was stopped or not he would go on. The correspondent adds that enigmatic behavior of Servia complicates the situation dangerously, and that if King Peter pursues his course it is the feeling in Vienna that an ultimatum will be at once sent to Belgrade.

SHIFT OF FORCE

Allies Now Turning Their Forces
Toward the Dardanelles.

Constantinople, Nov. 26.—It is reported here that the Bulgarians have withdrawn considerable forces from the Tchataldja lines, sending them to Adrianople and the Dardanelles. Vigorous action by a Greek and Bulgarian force against the Dardanelles is expected unless the armistice is promptly effected.

There is a divergence of opinion among the ambassadors of the powers here regarding the port's demand for the withdrawal of the foreign naval contingents. The Austrian and German envoys agree with the port's view that the presence of the marines is not needed, but the other members of the diplomatic corps consider their presence in Constantinople as still necessary.

Peace and tranquility now prevail around Tchataldja. The Turks are making the most of the respite to dig cover. They are in possession of the Hademkeui valley and have pushed their advanced posts to the hills on the western side of the valley near the village of Tchataldja. Many additional earthworks have been constructed. The Turks are in a very strong position and full of hope. It would certainly be a costly undertaking for the allies to force the splendid defensive position. Nothing is known regarding the negotiations for an armistice beyond the fact that the meeting place has been chosen.

A Verdict Is in Doubt.

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 26.—The trial jury of Burton W. Gibson, accused of murdering Mrs. Szabo, after being out eight hours, announced that it could not agree and asked that Justice Tompkins be notified. It was said that the jury stood 9 to 3 for conviction. Judge Tompkins ordered the jury to go back and make another attempt to agree.

Your Christmas Problem Solved at T. M. JACKSON'S

You don't have to worry about what to give, I've done the worrying for you. I have been working for many months to prepare for this event. I have bought goods from all over the country. I have searched the markets everywhere. I have bought the best the world offers.

I am now ready to offer Christmas suggestions to my most intimate friends as well as to those people whom I know only slightly.

I am ready to stake my future reputation on what I offer as suggestions—on what I sell as gifts.

Whether your purchase involves the spending of merely a trifle or of several dollars, I am ready to welcome you and serve you faithfully—serve you intelligently—serve you so well that you cannot help but be pleased.

I mention a few articles that always prove ideal and welcome Christmas gifts.

Diamonds $7.00 to $300.00, Watches $5.00 to $150.00, Rings $1.00 to $225. Also Cut Glass, Gold Jewelry, Silver Ware, Fountain Pens and many other inexpensive but dainty little novelties which will make excellent gifts. Suppose you call in and look us over today, it will pay you well.

printing amounts to, or what it costs to establish and maintain a newspaper. The amount of public printing possible under the law in these days is insignificant. It constitutes a very small part of the income of any real newspaper.

In fact there is a good deal of misconception, especially among politicians, as to the part played in the development of a newspaper by politics. Few newspapers run simply for the money there is in the newspaper business, without regard to the owner's conception of his duty as an educator of public opinion, go into politics at all. The promises of politicians are mighty weak assets for any newspaper. The newspaper that takes a decided stand on politics is thereby certain to alienate more people than it attracts. The time has gone by when politics plays any considerable part in the promotion of a newspaper.

It is true that people generally like a newspaper that has convictions and opinions of its own, and contends for them manfully. Public appreciation of such a newspaper depends upon the virility and the ability with which such convictions and opinions are defended. It does not make so much difference what these opinions and convictions are, provided only that they do not offend the moral sense of a community.

But a newspaper's success is always measured, in the long run, by its value and interest as a newspaper. Its financial progress depends altogether upon the sagacity with which its business affairs are handled. A newspaper goes on its merits.

The newspaper graveyard is full of mounds that cover the remains of newspapers started to fill some long felt political "wants." Newspapers cannot live on political hot air or partisan enthusiasm. That has been demonstrated over and over again. Possibly there are those in Indiana who want to learn this lesson over again. If so they can get a lot of experience by trying the experiment of starting papers that are intended to grind the axes of politicians.

TURKEYS FOR THE WINNERS

Prudential Men in Spirited Contest for Thanksgiving Birds.

The assistant superintendents and agents of the Prudential Insurance Company of Seymour and Columbus have a spirited contest on this week, and the winners will be presented with turkeys and chickens for Thanksgiving. The team that secures the largest amount of new business during the week will be declared the winners and will walk away with the prizes.

The arrangements for the contest were made here Saturday at a meeting which was attended by Superintendent D. Huffer and Assistant Superintendent Fred H. Acker, of Columbus, and the local team. The agreement provides that the assistant superintendent and leading agent of the winning team will receive turkeys and the agents holding second and third places will be given a chicken apiece. The insurance men are unusually busy this week as result of the offer and the local team are endeavoring to win the prizes.

Itching Palm Oil.

"Palm oil," a synonym for "graft," is not at all a novelty in this sense. In 1627 Middleton wrote that "palm oil will make a pursuivant relent." The sixteenth and seventeenth centuries revelled in varieties of the metaphor. Greene speaks of rubbing palms with "the oil of angels," a humorous allusion to the coin named after the angelic figure stamped upon it, and "oil of angels" seems to have been quite a common joke in England. Another writer has a reference to "anointing" an ecclesiastic in the 18th "with Indian oyle." Both "anointing" and "greasing" were frequently used to mean bribing, even without special mention of the hand as the part greased.

Shot an Angel.

Now and again we hear of strange and rare birds being shot in England, but how many sportsmen except Mr. Wells' clergyman can claim to have shot an angel? One such man exists, though it is doubtful whether he is proud of his skill. It was nighttime, and he was passing Crayford parish churchyard when he saw what he took for a ghost. He leveled his piece and fired, but his aim was wild. He had failed to wing his quarry. Investigation showed that the ghost was a sculptured angel on a tomb, and he had shot off one of its toes. He admits now it was not a ghost he saw.—London Chronicle.

PARTY PAPERS.

(Muncie Evening Press.)

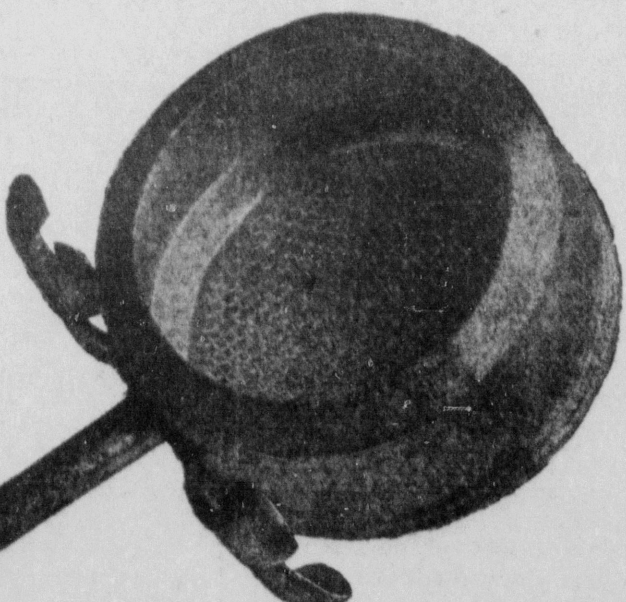

The statement goes out from the "progressive" state headquarters at Indianapolis that in the counties in Indiana in which the "progressives" ran second, and where a "progressive" paper would, under the law, be permitted to have such public advertising as would legally go to the two parties casting the highest number of votes at the election on November 5th, "progressive" newspapers will be established.

The thought that in these days the "public printing" is of sufficient volume to justify the establishment of a newspaper, is evidence of a very crude conception either of what such

PARCELS POST LAW

Details Will Be Announced Before the First of the Year.

The Parcels Post law enacted just before congress adjourned last summer, goes into effect the first of next January. The public is anxious to learn the details of this new law and all that appears in the papers is carefully read. Until the official Parcel Post maps and the official Parcel Post guide, prepared by the Department, are sent out postmasters throughout the country will not be prepared to impart much information to inquirers. Between now and January 1st postmasters will be supplied with all the information and the equipment necessary for starting this new feature of the postal business.

The November bulletin sent out by the Department contains a few things about the Parcel Post service that the public should keep in mind. Remember the following:

"That distinctive parcel post stamps must be used on all fourth-class matter beginning January, 1, 1913, and that such matter bearing ordinary postage stamps will be treated as 'held for postage'."

"That parcels will be mailable only at post offices, branch post offices, lettered and local-named stations, and such numbered stations as may be designated by the postmaster."

"That all parcels must bear the return card of the sender; otherwise they will not be accepted for mailing."

Remember especially that when the parcel post law goes into effect ordinary stamps cannot be used on fourth-class matter and that all parcels must bear the name and address of the sender.

Miss Ethel Wohrer of Hayden passed through here Monday of her way home from Indianapolis.

Mrs. C. W. Burkart and daughter, Gertrude, returned home last night from a visit in Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. George Downey went to Cincinnati this morning and will remain until after Thanksgiving.

Miss Bertha Siener returned to her home in North Vernon Monday after visiting her sister, Miss Lizetta Siener.

Mrs. Sophia Kleinmeyer of Brownstown was here this morning on her way to Indianapolis to visit relatives.

Miss May Kelley, a teacher at the Englewood school near Bedford spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Alta J. Kelley.

Miss Mary Leland of Madison, will come Wednesday to visit Mrs. T. Roeger Carter until after Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Chris Weghoff, who has been visiting relatives here, returned to her home in Indianapolis Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dale Hodapp left this morning for New York City after an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Andrews.

Mrs. Harry French came from Aurora this afternoon and will spend Thanksgiving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hirtzel.

Mrs. J. P. Ahl went to Indianapolis this morning to spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ahl. Mr. Ahl is steward in the Spencer hotel.

Miss Lavina Eader of Indianapolis, who has been here for several days in the interest of the Court of Honor lodge, returned to her home this morning.

Mrs. Frank Huckleberry left this afternoon for her home in Dardenell, Ark. after visiting Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Huckleberry here and relatives in Logansport.

Randall Harlan, who is attending the Cincinnati School of Music, spent last evening here with friends on his way home to Washington to spend Thanksgiving.

John Roeger, night clerk at the post office, left last evening for Montgomery, Ala., to spend Thanksgiving with friends. He will be gone about fifteen days.

Mrs. O. E. Henderson and daughter, Miss Hazel, left this morning for Blanchester, O. to spend Thanksgiving with her brother, George Anderson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Lockhart and granddaughter, Dorothy Plummer, of Medora, were here this morning on their way to Indianapolis to spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Plummer.

BASKET BALL GAMES

Alumni Squad Getting in Training for Games This Winter.

The alumni of the Shields high school have organized a basket ball squad and in a short time will begin regular practice. About twenty-five of the former "stars" have signed to attend the practice which will be held in the high school gymnasium. It is planned to hold several games this winter with the high school team and the alumni team is confident of showing the boys just "how it is done."

Some of the high school boys are much interested in basket ball this year, and a number of good practice games have been played. The manager expects to schedule some contests with other high schools during the winter and several may be played here. Plans are also on foot to organize a track team here in the spring, so that contestants may enter the annual meet at North Vernon in May.

The War Fifty Years Ago

Hostilities Begin on the Rappahannock---The Army of the Potomac Under General Burnside Moves to Fredericksburg---Surrender of the Town Demanded. General Longstreet's Confederates Form For Defense Along the South Side of the River---Federal Guns Throw Shell Into the Confederate Camps---Drafting Recruits For the Armies---Conscription Opposed In Georgia---Difficulty of Supplying War Funds.

By Captain GEO. L. KILMER, Late U. S. V.

THE first important act by General Burnside after he assumed command of the Army of the Potomac the second week in November, 1862, was to order the army to march forward to the Rappahannock river, the second was the division of his force into three parts. As armies form for battle these parts would constitute a right wing, center and left wing. They each comprised two corps as follows: Right grand division, commanded by General E. V. Sumner, consisting of the Second and Ninth corps; center commanded by General Joseph Hooker, made up of the Third and Fifth corps; left grand division under General W. B. Franklin, consisting of the Sixth and First corps.

Two corps belonging to this army did not go forward to the Rappahannock and were not included in the reorganization—namely, the Eleventh and the Twelfth. The Twelfth corps, led by General W. H. Slocum, remain-river, divided into two corps, the first commanded by General James Longstreet and the second by General T. J. ("Stonewall") Jackson. The Confederate line extended from Culpeper Court House (where the First corps was stationed) on its right across the Blue Ridge down the valley of Virginia to Winchester. There Jackson was encamped with the Second corps.

About the 19th of November Lee received information through scouts that Sumner, with his grand division of more than 30,000 Federals, was moving toward Fredericksburg. On receipt of the information two of Longstreet's divisions were ordered down to meet him. They made a forced march and arrived on the hills around Fredericksburg on the afternoon of the 21st. Sumner had already arrived, and his army was encamped on Stafford heights, overlooking the town from the Federal side.

Surrender Demanded.

Before Longstreet reached Fredericksburg General Patrick, provost marshal general, crossed the river under a flag of truce and put the inhabitants in a state of great excitement by delivering the following letter:

Headquarters of the Army of the Potomac Nov. 21, 1862.

To the Mayor and Common Council of Fredericksburg:

Gentlemen—Under cover of the houses of your city shots have been fired upon the troops of my command. Your mills and manufactories are furnishing provisions and the material for clothing for armed bodies in rebellion against the government of the United States. Your railroads and other means of transportation are removing supplies to the depots of such troops. This condition of things must terminate, and by direction of General Burnside I accordingly demand the surrender of your city into my hands as the representative of the government of the United States at or before 5 o'clock this afternoon. Failing in an affirmative reply to this demand by the hour indicated, sixteen hours will be permitted to elapse for the removal from the city of women and children, the sick and wounded and aged, etc., which period having expired I shall proceed to shell the town. Upon obtaining possession of the city every necessary means will be taken to preserve order and secure the protective operation of the laws and policy of the United States government. I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

E. V. SUMNER,

Brevet Major General, U. S. Army, Commanding Right Grand Division.

While the people were in a state of excitement over the receipt of this demand for the surrender of their town, Longstreet's troops appeared upon the heights opposite those occupied by the Federals. Longstreet stated to the town authorities that he did not care to occupy the place for military purposes and that there was no reason why it should be shelled by the Federal army. The mayor sent to General Sumner a statement of the situation and was notified that the threatened shelling would not take place since the Confederates did not purpose to make the town a base of military operations.

Drafting Soldiers For the Field.

At this time fifty years ago several northern states were face to face with military conscription, and the whole south was grappling with this un-American problem. Never before in the history of the republic had it been necessary to use intimidation or force remain, even though they were under eighteen or over thirty-five years of age.

Practically every able-bodied man in the south was compelled to join the army. Even physicians were not exempt. But some men were slow to go to the front willingly, and the captains, colonels and generals who wanted to fill their ranks went into the country and took the unwilling recruits to camp by force.

The use of force or intimidation, which amounted to the same thing, met with great opposition in parts of the south. The law established military government, something repugnant to all Americans. Governor Joseph E. Brown of Georgia was one of the first to challenge the Confederate conscription law. Its enforcement was seriously opposed in his state and in some counties had not been executed when the Georgia legislature met in November.

In his annual message Governor Brown declared that it was unconstitutional. The subject was referred to a joint committee, and instantly two parties arose. A majority of the committee reported that the Confederate

SALMON P. CHASE, SECRETARY OF THE UNITED STATES TREASURY UNDER LINCOLN.

Congress had no right to compel citizens to bear arms except by a requisition upon several states for their quotas, allowing each state to exercise such compulsion as might be necessary.

The supreme court of Georgia soon declared that the law was constitutional, yet the governor did not cease to oppose this enforcement. The matter was not settled during the war.

Gold and the Sinews of War.

There was no crisis in raising troops to continue the war in the north at the close of 1862, but there was a money crisis. In fact, the soldiers went to the front faster than the treasurer could get cash to pay them. Throughout the summer payments to the troops in the field had been delayed. In part the shortage was caused by the payment of advance money to new recruits and bounties. Town, county and state bounties were paid in order to encourage volunteering, but this did not come out of the national war chest.

Gold arose to a high premium, from 20 per cent in August to 40 per cent in November. The government offered to take gold on deposit and pay interest on it, at the same time return it if demanded in ten days. People began to speculate in gold for a raise. The secretary of the treasury, Salmon P. Chase, became alarmed over the scarcity of gold in the market and prevailed upon banks not to loan paper money on it. A few banks complied, but this merely led to individual trading in gold.

Early in November Secretary Chase offered for sale $13,000,000 in bonds which he had held back over a year. Only six days were allowed in which to offer bids. Next day after the bonds were offered he asked the banks to loan the treasury $12,000,000 at 5 per cent. This money he expected to pay back out of the proceeds of the bond sale. However, this sudden call raised the money rate 1 per cent, and the bonds sold lower than they would but for the sudden rise of the money rate.

At this time the treasury was paying $1,300,000 a day, chiefly for war expenditures. There were a million soldiers in the field, over 500,000 of the number being new troops. The growth of the war expenses is shown by the increase in the estimates for the current year—that is, the fiscal year of 1863. The new estimate for the army was $747,000,000 for 1863 as against $394,000,000 in 1862; for the navy, $82,000,000 as against $42,000,000 in 1862.

To meet the increased outlay it was expected that the new war taxes would treble the government receipts in 1863 making them $167,000,000 as against $51,000,000 in 1862. The inflation of the paper currency to meet the need of the government produced great anxiety in the public. Numerous remonstrances were made against the further issue of paper money. One result of the free use of paper money was the rise of gold. Gold arose from 2 1/2 per cent premium in January, 1862 to 29 to 33 per cent in November. The supply of California gold was deflected to England owing to the danger of the capture of United States vessels by Confederate privateers. One consignment was brought in by the warship Connecticut, sent to Aspinwall for this purpose. Insurance was increased on the cargoes of ships carrying the United States flag, which was another reason for shipping coast gold to England

GOVERNOR JOSEPH E. BROWN OF GEORGIA WHO OPPOSED CONSCRIPTION.

In order to get soldiers to the front in the north a draft had been ordered to take place in September unless the quotas of the several states should be filled by volunteers. Nearly all of the states furnished to the national government the number of men called for.

In the south the conscription law which the Confederate congress passed in April, 1862, bore harshly upon the people because it was universal. It annulled all existing contracts with volunteers and made all men over eighteen and under thirty-five years of age soldiers for the whole war. Some of those in the field had enlisted for only two years. All men who were in service already were required to ed at Harpers Ferry, and the Eleventh, General Sigel's command, marched no farther than Warrenton. Both corps were held back in order to quiet the fears of the country as to the safety of Washington. In the midst of the public clamor for the headlong advance of the army against the foe there was equally vehement demand that the national capital be safeguarded against a Confederate flank movement. With these two corps in his column Burnside would have had odds of 2 to 1 in his favor when he attacked Lee.

On to the Rappahannock.

After impressing upon the Washington authorities the urgent need of hurrying forward rations and pontoon boats for bridging the Rappahannock Burnside set out for the river, with Sumner's right grand division in the lead.

The Second corps, in advance, left Warrenton on the 15th and reached Falmouth, on the left bank of the Rappahannock, opposite Fredericksburg, in the early afternoon of the 17th. The few pickets of the enemy who were on this bank hastily retired as the head of the corps came up. Fredericksburg was at this moment occupied by a regiment of cavalry, four companies of infantry and a light battery. The guns of the latter were to be seen in position on the northern outskirts of the city, the drivers and cannoneers lying idly about in groups, apparently expecting the coming of their enemy, but also expecting a fair notice. It pleased General Couch, commander of the corps, however, to order Captain Pettit to take his guns by a roundabout way through some deep ravines well to the rear of Falmouth and to climb from behind a steep hill of considerable height exactly opposite the Confederate battery, the result of which was that Pettit's six Parrotts began slinging solid shot and shell in among the enemy's guns and gunners before they had the faintest notion that the ball was about to open.

Gunners Driven From Their Guns.

Gallantly they sprang to their pieces, but it was of no use. Pettit had the advantage in elevation, his guns were six to their four, and, besides, he had cannoneers who could hardly be matched in any battery of the regular army. Within five minutes every man had been driven from the pieces and had taken refuge behind the adjacent houses and walls. There stood the four guns abandoned in plain view.

Meanwhile some of the Confederate artillerymen, braver than the rest, dashed out from cover with a prolonged and, attaching it to the nearest piece, dragged it behind the house. In vain did Pettit send one shot and another after the gun. Three times, at irregular intervals, was this repeated, until at last the tempting prizes were removed from sight. The Federal generals soon gave their attention to posting the fast-arriving regiments along the hills skirting the north bank.

Confederates Hurry Forward.

General R. E. Lee's army was on the south side of the Rappahannock

HOLDEN LEAVES IOWA COLLEGE

The "Corn Man" Joins I H C Service Bureau.

TO HELP PUSH WORK FORWARD

Co-Operation Movement for Larger Crops, Better Roads, More Prosperous People and a Better Nation.

This marks the beginning of a new and greater business service. It is a co-operative movement for larger crops, better roads, happier homes, more prosperous people, and a richer and better nation. That is to say, the I H C Service Bureau proposes to help do for all the states and for Canada what Holden has done for Iowa.

After considering many offers, and after an investigation of the company and its works, Professor Perry G. Holden has entered the service of the I H C Service Bureau at Chicago.

Professor Holden is known wherever real agriculture is known. His whole life is one of service. He originated the idea of carrying information direct to farmers. He is the father of the demonstration train, short school courses, the corn show, county demonstration farms, and the National Corn Exposition. As head of the extension department of Iowa State College of Agriculture he did a work which, Senator Cummins says, up to the present time has increased the wealth of Iowa $30,000,000.

The object of the I H C Service Bureau is the promotion of agricultural education, and a co-operation which will tend to raise the whole tone of commercial, industrial and farm life. Since agriculture is the basis of prosperity and progress, naturally farm problems claim first attention. The aim is higher efficiency, both on and off the farm.

To do a big work a big organization is necessary. Not only the bigness, but the perfection of the International organization as well appealed to Professor Holden. The big general agencies, scattered all over the United States and Canada; the salesmen, travelers and expert machine men; the 40,000 dealers—every one, so far as possible, is to be made an apostle of better farming.

For years the International Harvester Company has realized the importance of service. It has spent millions of dollars in the perfection of labor-saving machines, and now the company is going in for direct service—direct to the farmers, and direct to the farmers' children, that the men and women of tomorrow may be more capable and so more prosperous than the men and women of today.

It is no longer a theory that if we are to get the most out of life we must raise more per acre. "Intensive farming" is in the air. It is the battle cry of peace and plenty. But raising more is the result of mind, not muscle. We must know. And not only that, we must know we know, and know why we know. We must know good seed from bad, right cultivation from wrong, and the ways and whereof of climates, soils, fruits, cattle, horses, poultry, and so forth.

For these things the bureau was established. But the bureau and Professor Holden see more than an average increase of a few bushels. They see a time coming when farmers will raise twice as many bushels of corn, wheat and oats to the acre, and like yields of all other kinds of farm products. They see a time when farmers and farmers' wives and their children will think more and work less. Every bushel raised means just that much profit, and the profits of the farm promote commerce and industry.

After a period of good work in Michigan agricultural college, better work at Illinois, and a great work at Iowa, Professor Holden now enters upon a world's work. While in future Professor Holden will designate Chicago as home, he says he is not leaving Iowa—he is merely carrying Iowa to the rest of the world.

LABOR SAVING

Farm Implements are Needed in the South

[By G. H. Alford, I H C Service Bureau]

The demand of the times is for improvement along every line; for building better roads, better homes, churches and school houses. We desire better equipment on our farms and in our homes. The teachers and ministers must have expensive educations and hence demand better salaries. Telephones, rural deliveries of mail, libraries, etc., are becoming necessities. It is the desire of every parent to educate the children at colleges or good schools.

Apparently the key to agricultural improvement in the south is more power and labor-saving farm implements on the farm. The average farm worker toils with a small mule or horse and his total annual income is about $148.00. In Iowa the average farm worker uses nearly four large horses and produces $611.11 annually exclusive of stock. Investigators show a much smaller use of power on the southern farms than in other sections of the country, and, consequently, less use of labor-saving farm implements and a correspondingly lower earning capacity of the farmers.

The power must come first and then the labor-saving implements. Every farmer in the south can easily get the necessary horses. He can better afford to buy extra horses than to attempt to farm with one or two small mules. By the use of strong teams and labor-saving implements, the wages of one, and sometimes two men, can be saved, and this will soon pay for an extra animal. However every farmer should raise his own horses. A good team of mares will do more work than several small mules, such as are largely used, and the colts raised will be a handsome profit, or furnish the additional power needed to handle larger farm machines.

Money-making farmers have fully proved that summer and winter pastures and well-cured hays should be the main reliance for feed. The feeding of horses and mules on pulled corn fodder and corn is so expensive and out of date that the practice should be abandoned. I saw seventeen fine mules that were raised on good pasture and pea vine hay. The mule colts obtained their living entirely in pastures from March 1 until December 1. The pastures were not brush patches or fields of weeds and briars, but tracts of fertile soil, well set in Bermuda grass, lespedeza, white and burr clover. Plenty of pea vine hay was kept in large racks for them from December 1 until March 1.

High priced labor makes it imperative that more and better farm implements be used. On every farm there should be at least a reversible disk plow or a large turning plow or disk harrow, two sections of steel harrow, combination planter, single-row cultivator, grain drill mower and rake, or a binder and a hay press. The above are essential, and if the means of the farmer will allow, many other convenient labor-saving implements, such as a two-row planter, threshing machine, engine, feed grinder, feed cutter, manure spreader, cream separator and an auto wagon could be added.

Yours very truly,

I H C SERVICE BUREAU.

GRASSES FOR WET LANDS

D. McWhinnie, of Hearnleigh, Alberta, writes as follows: "I have a flat of about 100 acres or so. About half of that is covered with water in the spring, which dries out about the middle of May so that one can work the land. I had thought that I could grow hay on it if I could get the grass started. Can you tell me the best kind of hay, and the best way to get this land started in grass?"

If this land can be drained, the best thing to do is to drain it either by using open ditches or tile, otherwise it is a rather difficult proposition to handle.

The water standing on the soil will kill out most of the tame grasses. Canadian blue grass and Kentucky blue grass are grown to some extent in parts of Canada for pasture purposes. Very few of the tame grasses will do so well on soils that are wet. The wild grasses, as a rule, grow very well on wet land. The grasses that do best on wet land are red top, fowl-meadow grass, combined with alsike clover. Timothy will do fairly well, and may be started by simply sowing the seed without any cultivation. We have had no experience, however, with these grasses in your section, and this is only a suggestion on our part.

The amount of seed to be sown depends on the kind of seed used. If the red-top, re-cleaned seed is used, two or three pounds per acre will be sufficient, while if the ordinary seed is grown, twelve to fifteen pounds of alsike clover seed per acre should be mixed with this.

MOLASSES AS A STOCK FEED

W. C. Stader, Vinegrove, Kentucky, writes: "What do you know about the value of black strip or low grade molasses as a feed, and how much should be fed?"

The Experiment Station Bulletin No. 118, of the Massachusetts Experiment Station, Amherst, Mass., gives a very complete digest of the subject of molasses as a feed. The conclusions do not seem to be very satisfactory regarding its value. Where it can be obtained cheaply, and where the grains are high priced, it probably has a place in the feeds. It is sometimes fed by diluting it with water so that stock will drink it, but generally it is used to give cheaper feeds more palatability; that is, it can be mixed with chopped straw or other coarse hay and stock will eat this to get the molasses. It is also used to quite an extent with alfalfa meal.

Its principal feeding constituent is the sugar or carbohydrates, and the conclusion of the Bulletin seems to be that these can be bought more cheaply in such feeds as corn than in the molasses. However, it would be well for you to find out what it would cost you in your locality before deciding as to feeding or not feeding it. At the present prices of other feeds, we are inclined to believe you will find that an investment in molasses for a feed will not be a profitable one.

Yours very truly,

I H C SERVICE BUREAU.

LAYING TILE IN QUICKSAND

Reply to M. E. Barton, Mishawaka, Indiana: "Will you please give me a little information on laying tile on a farm that has a quicksand bottom, also a little advice on killing out smartweed?"

This is quite a difficult proposition, and we believe the only way that results can be obtained is to use some durable timber and lay a board in the bottom of the ditch on which the tile can be laid to keep it from getting out of line. You would need a board about the same width as the tile, that is, for 4-inch tile a 1x4 board would be sufficient. At the points where the boards join, a short piece 12 or 14 inches long should be placed below so that there would not be a possibility of the tile becoming disjoined by one end of the board settling.

If you can get a considerable fall, the sand will probably not bother in filling up the tile, but if you cannot get a fall of three or four inches per 100 feet, it would be best, if possible, to fill in about the tile with clay or some other soil through which the water would seep and at the same time keep out the sand.

As to smartweed, we believe if you get your land properly drained you will not be bothered with this pest, as it only grows in soil that contains too much water for the proper growth of ordinary crops. If draining does not do it, we are sure that you can get rid of it by cultivation. A few crops of corn will help rid your land of this pest.

Yours very truly,

I H C SERVICE BUREAU.

OCTOBER REMINDERS

Arrange sheds and mows to feed shredded fodder to the stock—if you have never done so you will be pleased with results, especially with the fine lot of manure you have to spread.

Hay stacks in meadows adjoining corn fields should be fenced now in order to give free range to our stock just as soon as the corn is husked. To dig post holes in frozen ground is not what we call a "snap."

To furnish food for the world is an accomplishment worthy of great praise, but it is not our whole duty—remember that Tuesday, November 5, is election day.

See that the seed corn which you have carefully selected and hung up or put on racks to dry is not subjected to freezing weather. Sudden weather changes may happen any time—we should guard against these.

Pasturing alfalfa or clover too late is bad practice, to say the least. These crops, when cut or pastured close, are apt to be winter killed.

Are you making a record and ordering the needed repairs for the various machines as they are stored for the winter?

SOWING GOOD.

Each one of us is bound to make the little circle in which he lives better and happier. Each of us is bound to see that out of that small circle the widest good may flow. Each of us may have fixed in his mind the thought that out of a single household may flow influences that shall stimulate the whole civilized world.

Why Salves Can't Cure Eczema

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin diseases. But it has been found that these salves only close the pores and cannot penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the well known liquid eczema remedy, oil of wintergreen, thymol, glycerine, etc., as compounded in D.D.D. Prescription.

We have sold other remedies for skin troubles but none that we can recommend as highly as this for we know that D.D.D. stops the itch at once. We just want you to give D.D.D. a trial. That will be enough to prove it.

Of course all other druggists have D.D.D. Prescription—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept some big profit substitute.

But if you come to our store, we are so certain of what D.D.D. will do for you that we offer you a full size bottle on this guarantee—If you do not find that it takes away the itch AT ONCE, it costs you not a cent.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Decision.

BOTH Nan and the youngsters slept like children until 9 o'clock. Stuart helped the guides prepare breakfast with out waking the sleepers and called them at 9.

By 10 o'clock breakfast was over, the guides had formed two expiring parties and set out with the young people chattering and laughing. "We'll keep house, Jim, here in God's palace among the clouds until they return," said Nan.

"Yes," he answered cheerily, "and it will be fun to keep it alone, won't it, with no restraints or studied pretense, no crowd of fools or liveried flunkies near at hand."

They sat down on the ledge of rock which formed their cave house and gazed over the marvelous panorama of a world transformed into blue billowy mountains, flying clouds and turquoise skies. Over it all brooded the deep, solemn silence of eternity. Not a sound reached the ear from earth or air. Nan broke the silence.

"I have houses in town and country, with every whim of body and soul apparently gratified. But suppose that all this madness of luxury, at which you wonder, is but the vain effort of a hungry heart? The time has come in our lives when we should begin to see things as they are."

"I've been trying to do that for a long time," he answered quietly.

"And haven't succeeded," she added promptly. "The trouble is, Jim, that life is a tissue of lies. We are born in lies, grow up in lies, live and move and have our being in lies. I'm growing sick of lies."

Stuart looked at her flushed face with a deepening thrill of the drama of the soul its quick changing expression shadowed.

"Well?"

"I've grown to feel of late," she went on rapidly, "that it's a shame to dodge. The only law my husband has ever known is to take what he wants. I've the right to live my own life. We must each of us choose our world, the one of conventions and shams or the big one that's beyond—the world of reality, where free men and women live and work in freedom while youth and daring lead the way."

She paused and Stuart's lips parted in amazement. Never had he heard such eloquence from the woman before him.

"Jim," she went on falteringly, "I'm lonely and heartsick. I'm trying to tell you that I want your love; that I can't live any longer without it."

Her head sank low, and a sob caught her voice.

"There; I've told you. I've no pride left. Tell me that you love me. I want to hear it a thousand times. I want it, right or wrong! Speak! Say something, if only to curse me!"

"You should have thought of this, Nan, before these gray hairs began to creep into my hair."

"I did, Jim!" she cried, eagerly bending her head. "God knows I fought! You never knew it, but I did. For whole nights I wrestled with the fiend that tempted me and fought for my love. It took days and weeks to strangle its hold on my heart and force me to betray myself. Oh, Jim, it's not too late to live! Look at me, dearest, and say it's not. For God's sake, tell me that you love me still! Am I old? Am I faded?"

The man had felt sure of himself when she began, but the tenderness, the passion, the yearning appeal of her voice were more than he could resist.

"Look into my eyes, Nan," he cried, "and let me see the bottom of your soul!"

She lifted her dark lustrous eyes, devouring him with love.

"You'll find only your image there, Jim."

He looked at her sternly.

"Before I take you into my arms and smother you with kisses," he whispered fiercely, "there mustn't be any mistake this time. I've got to know that your love for me is the biggest thing in your life—the only thing in your life!"

"I swear it," she gasped.

"You've got to prove it; I'm going to put you to the test."

"Any test!" she broke in quickly.

"I warn you," he went on, with increasing seriousness, "the test will be a real one. You and I, Nan, could never be happy with the shadow of Bivens' fortune over us."

"But its shadow can't be over us! It's going to be yours. He has given it to me—his death is only a question of a year or two—and I'm going to give it all to you."

"There's not a dollar of his millions that isn't smirched. I'll sooner wear the rags of a leper than soil my hands with it. If you love me you will have to give up these millions."

Nan gazed at him in astonishment and broke into a low laugh.

"Of course, you're teasing me. You can't be in earnest in such an absurd dime novel ideal! Give away this enormous fortune!"

The woman placed her hand tenderly in his and nestled close to his side.

"Come, Jim, dear, this is a practical world; you have some common sense even if you are a man of genius; you're not insane!"

"I think not," he answered, soberly.

"You cannot make this absurd demand on me," she repeated slowly. "Knowing the awful price I paid for these millions?"

"It's because I know it that I make the demand," he went on, passionately. "We are face to face now, you and I, with all the little subtleties and lies of life torn from our eyes. The fact that the price at which he bought you was high—say a hundred millions—does not change the fact. I refuse to share with the woman I love the price for which she sold herself, whether the sum be a hundred dollars or a hundred millions! I can forgive and have forgiven the wrong you've done me, but I could never share its conscious degradation."

Nan looked at him in despair, her eyes suddenly clouding with tears.

"What do you mean when you say give up these millions?"

"Just what I say," he answered quickly.

"But I couldn't throw them into the street. What would I do with them?"

"You can give them back to the people, the public, from whom they were taken—the people whose labor created their value. That's what an honest man does when he finds he has wronged his neighbor. There's not a stone in your palaces whose cement was not mixed in human tears. The stain of blood is in every scarlet thread of your carpets, rugs and curtains."

"But you are talking like a mad anarchist. His money was made as all great fortunes are made."

"So much the worse for our financiers. Civilization must rest at least on justice or it can't endure."

"But, Jim, no matter what your theories of life or your ambitions, these millions will make them more powerful."

"It's not true. Not a single great man whose words have molded the world was rich. The glitter of your millions once blinded me and I was on the point of surrender, but I've won out. The people in your little world live for money. They do not possess it, they are possessed by it. They are slaves. You will have to come with me into the great free world—if you love me."

"If I love you?" Nan cried, with trembling lips. "Don't speak that way. If you only knew! My love for you has kept me alive through all I've endured. It's the only thing that's worth the struggle; but I can't think. Your demand is so sudden, so stunning, so terrifying, I don't know what to say."

"We can never be anything to each other," he answered firmly, "on any other terms than the renunciation of all that Bivens leaves. I don't care what you do with it, just so you wash your hands of it. You and I must begin life just where we left off when the shadow of his money darkened the world for us both. You must give it up."

"It's hard, dearest," she said with a sob, "for your sake it's hard. I've dreamed so many wonderful things that would come to pass when I made you the master of these millions."

"You must choose between his money and my love; you can't have both."

She gazed at him with a desperate yearning.

"I'll do anything you wish, only love me, dearest," she sobbed. "All I ask is to be loved—loved—loved—and that you never leave me!"

But even as she spoke, her mind was made up. She would reserve at least half her fortune secretly. When they were married she could persuade him to be reasonable.

"All right, then, it's settled, but it must be everything with me or nothing. I won't shake hands with my friend and make love to his wife. You must cease to be his wife now."

"But how—what do you mean?" she asked, white with sudden fear.

"Leave your husband, your palaces, your millions and join me tomorrow night on the limited for New York. Bring only a change of clothes in a single trunk and a hand bag. My money must be sufficient. I'll wire for passage on an outgoing steamer. We'll spend two years in Europe and return to America when we please. Are you ready?"

"Oh, Jim, dear," she faltered, "you know that would be madness!"

"Certainly it's madness, the madness of a great love! Come, why do you hesitate?"

The lines of her body relaxed and she began to sob softly. The man waited in silence for her to speak.

"I've done you harm enough, dearest," she said at last. "I can't do this."

"And your thought is only of me, Nan?" he asked with piercing intensity.

"And of myself," she acknowledged brokenly. "I couldn't do such an insane, vulgar thing."

"I didn't think you could," was the bitter response.

"All I ask," she pleaded, "is to hear you say the words that you love me now—just as I am with all my faults."

"Well, I shall not speak them," he answered savagely. "Your husband is the master of millions, but I am the master of something bigger—I am the master of myself. I will not play a second fiddle to your little husband."

The dark head dropped lower. When she lifted it at last two deepening tears were shining in her eyes.

"I understand, Jim," she said simply. "We will go on as we have. I'll wait in silence."

He rose and lifted her to her feet. The voices of the youngsters rang up the mountain's side.

"No, we can't go on like this now. Nan," he said with quiet strength. "The silence has been broken between us. Your husband is my friend and from today our lives must lie apart. It's the only way."

She extended her hand and he pressed it tenderly. Her voice was the merest sobbing whisper when she spoke: "Yes, Jim, I suppose it's the only way."

Fifty Years Ago Today.

Nov. 26.

The Western Associated Press was organized, with Richard Smith of Cincinnati president and J. Medill of Chicago secretary and treasurer.

Jem Mace, champion boxer of England, lost his belt to Tom King, who felled him in the twenty-first round with an "Armstrong gun" blow. John C. Heenan, champion of the United States, witnessed the bout and challenged the winner.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

After two years' trial of prohibition Atlanta voted it down by 1,000 majority.

"There could be no better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My children were all sick with whooping cough. One of them was in bed, had a high fever and was coughing up blood. Our doctor gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the first dose eased them, and three bottles cured them," says Mrs. R. A. Donaldson, of Lexington, Miss. For sale by all dealers. Advertisement.

THE TRUE IDEALIST.

Every human being, unless he lacks utterly the capacity to love, is an idealist. No man can boast that he accepts only the "plain facts" of existence as his guideposts. Through love we are given the power to look beyond the crude husk we call the fact. Any great achievement is impossible without this power. Life thrills with meaning and magic for the true idealist.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years."

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARTHA L. HOLLOWAY, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (Confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

HOMEMADE MINCEMEAT.

WHILE mincemeat may be bought of excellent quality and delicious in quality, many families prefer the kind that is made under their own supervision. Those who demand that it shall be free from brandy may then assure themselves that liquor is excluded, while families who taboo pork can in this way see that they have porkless mincemeat.

Cheap Mincemeats.

Vegetarian Mincemeat.—Take one peck green tomatoes, chopped fine. Drain juice and throw it away. Put on three pints of hot water and boil five minutes. Drain off all juice.

this three times. Add two and one-half pounds medium brown sugar, two pounds seeded raisins, one-half pound, chopped citron, one teaspoonful of elder vinegar, two level tablespoonfuls of ground cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful each of ground cloves, allspice and nutmeg, one tablespoonful of salt.

Mincemeat With Elder.—Boil two pounds of beef. That from the neck may be used. When cold enough to handle mince finely. To every pint of meat add two pints of chopped apples, a cupful of raisins, one cupful of currants and a quarter pound of citron. Put all fruit through a meat grinder.

Add salt, sugar and spice to taste; also a glass of currant or grape jelly. Mix and moisten well with good, sweet, cider. Boil thoroughly and it will keep all winter.

Elaborate Pie Fillings.

Rich Mincemeat.—Take three pints of cooked meat, beef and pork, six pints of apples, one pint of molasses, one pint of vinegar, one pint of boiled cider, one pint of suet, two pints of raisins (chopped), five pints of brown sugar, one and one-half pounds of citron, cinnamon, nutmeg, ground cloves, two tablespoonfuls each of salt and black pepper. Grate the rind and squeeze the juice of one lemon. Boil until the raisins are tender.

Mincemeat de Luxe.—Take half a pound of raw beef, one pound of suet and one pound of tart apples. Chop each finely and separately. Take half a pound of currants well washed and dried, half a pound of raisins, seeded half a pound of citron cut into small bits, half a pound of brown sugar, half a pint of New Orleans molasses, one ounce of salt, half ounce of mixed cinnamon, cloves and allspice, one-fourth ounce white pepper, one-half grated nutmeg, juice of some lemon, half a pint of cider. Mix meat, suet, salt and spices. Add apples, then fruit, then cider and last of all the sugar.

Lord Cholmondeley was one day leaving his own house, when he encountered an American, who, not knowing his lordship by sight, asked him if Lord Cholmondeley, pronouncing each syllable distinctly, was at home.

"No," replied the peer, without any hesitation, "nor any of his pe-o-ple."

YOUTH'S COMPANION.

Hate in Parliament.

A member of parliament must never stand up with his hat on even if he has only risen to speak to the man behind him. Coming in, going out or speechifying he is always hatless and he is sometimes hatless when sitting down. Thus if the speaker mentions a bill the member is responsible for he lifts his hat. If his name is mentioned in a speech he lifts his hat. Even if he happens at those times to be bareheaded he must seize a hat, put it on, then lift it.
